In 2014–2015, the Fine Arts Museums of San Francisco’s de Young and Legion of Honor were filled with nearly 1.5 million visitors representing a broad spectrum of ages and nationalities, from wide-eyed local schoolchildren to experienced global travelers.

A glance at our numbers tells a compelling story of how museums serve people within their communities and beyond: tens of thousands participating in our free admission days; hundreds of artists, poets, musicians, and cultural leaders expressing their art in immersive installations and performances; myriad volunteers and docents guiding groups—those with newborns in carriers to others with the most discerning eyes—through thousands of square feet of exhibitions culled from around the globe; and makers of all ages trying their hands at art techniques through our education programs, thus opening windows to their own creativity.

We seek to provide a journey of discovery for all who visit our museums, and we recognize and thank our donors, members, and sponsors, whose commitment, generosity, and support make it all possible.

The Fine Arts Museums by the Numbers

- 1,442,200 Visitors to the de Young and Legion of Honor combined
- 105,300 Member households
- 63,228 Visitors on admission-free first Tuesdays
- 46,266 Students participating in free K–12 programs
- 2,558 Participants in Access programs
- 1,442 Objects acquired
- 604 Local artists invited to present exhibitions and performances at the museums
- 528 Active volunteers and docents
- 75 Local teens working in the Museum Ambassador program
- 25 Exhibitions presented at both museums
